

Disability Awareness

- What does it mean to be disabled?
- How does this impact your life and work?
- What language is and isn't appropriate?
- How should you behave when you are introduced to a disabled person?
- Under the law, do you have to make reasonable adjustments and how is that achieved?
- What does it mean to be a Disability Confident employer?

If these are some of the questions you have about disability in the workplace, this is the programme that can provide the answers. With input from people with lived experience, this half day workshop will tackle some of the issues regularly faced by disabled people and explore how all workplaces can think differently about ensuring an inclusive approach.
